Otherwise There's Rebody to Arrest the Sherif or Reployin Goods. He days—The Legality of the Election of Coreners for Manhat-ian and Broax Boroughs Questioned. The legality of the election of the Coroners for the boroughs of Manhattan and the Bronz going to be tested in open court.

Coroner Tuthill, who is one of the outgoing rd of Coroners, is of opinion that the election is not legal, and he is going to take steps to test the matter, if possible, in a friendly suit. Dr. Tuthill holds that the Greater New York charter does not include the office of Coroner among the offices designated as "borough offices," and that it has not abolished the office of County Coroner.

The Coroner would not say exactly what he intended doing, but it is probable that an injunction will be served on the present Board of Coroners restraining them from handing over the books and papers of the office to the in coming board.

The charter provides in section 1,570 for the election of four Coroners in the borough of Manhattan, three in Queens, and two each in the Bronx and Richmond. It says that the Coroners "shall be elected in the same manner and at the same general election as are the Sheriffs in the several counties in which such boroughs are situated, and shall hold their respective offices for the term of four years, and shall be removable in the same manner as Sheriffs.

city is two years, and consequently the term of ce of the Coroners of the boroughs of Manhattan and the Bronx cannot be for four years it they are elected in the same manner and at the same general election with the Sheriff.

"As I understand it, the office of Coroner is a county office. The full title of the Corner of the county, and the jurisdic on is "Coroner of the county," and the jurisdic on is "Coroner of the county. Candidates to fill these offices must be elected by the electors of the county or appointed by some county authority, as the Legislature may direct. The Legislature has directed that they be elected by the people of the county unless the new charter is to be construed as changing the rule in the case of the county of New York. The provision of the charter with reference to Coroners is unfortunately somewhat ambiguous. If it means that a new class of officers be created called 'Horough Coroners', two of whom are to be elected by the electors of the borough of the Bronx, and four of whom are to be elected by the electors of the borough of Manhattan, it seems to me that the Legislature has simply created a new body of officers not intended to supersede the County Coroners, but to have some sort of concurrent jurisdiction with them so far as inquests, &c., are concerned, but not capable of exercising the functions of the office, which require a jurisdiction co-extensive with the county. If that he so, no one has been elected to fill the office of County Coroner as myb-uccessor, even if my term has expired, which is doubtful. In any event, the law requires me to hold over and perform my duttes as County Coroner until a successor in that identical office is duly elected or appointed.

"I notice that the charter does not include unless the new charter is to be construed as any event, the law requires me to hold over and perform my duties as County Coroner until a successor in that identical office is duly clected or appointed.

"I notice that the charter does not include the office of Coroner among the offices designated as borough offices," and that it has not abolished the office of County Coroner, although it does in one instance abolish the office of County Teasurer. I notice also that Coroners are included by name with the county officers who are not required on the 1st of January next to surrender the public books, papers, and documents in their possession to the city authorities, so that if the newly elected Coroners' are to be deemed city officials, they would not be entitled to demand of the County Coroners, and the County Coroners would not be authorized to deliver to them, the books, papers, and records of the Coroners' office.

"I doubt very much, however, whether it will be held that the charter contemplates any such radical departure from the established method of choosing Coroners. It is far more reasonable to suppose that the Charter Commissioners and the Legislature only intended to provide for a division of territory and labor in the Coroner's effice, and not to change the method of election; in other words, that the intention was that all the people of the county of New York should vote for all six Coroners, but that two of the candidates should be residents of the Broux, and have charge of the office them, to exercise their jurisdiction. If this be not so the courts will have to explain what the Charter Commissioners and Legislature meant by conferring upon these six Coroners all the powers and devolving upon them all the duties for the office in that borough, leaving all six of them unrestricted jurisdiction. If this be not so the courts will have to explain what the Charter Commissioners and Legislature meant by conferring upon these six Coroners all the powers and devolving upon them all the duties the Coroners of the court of the process of the court in ci because in such cases the process must run to The Coroners of the county.

"It would be a great misfortune if the members of the present Board of Coroners should vacate their offices on the 1st of January next and it should be discovered later that no County Coroners were left competent to execute writs of replevin and otherwise act as substitute for the Sheriff, and that being the case, to avoid confusion, and in the interests of the public and the city, I deem it to be a duty of the present board to hold over until the question can be decided.

"This condition of affairs exists only in the counties of New York and Queens. In Richmond and Kings counties the counties and the boroughs are coterminous, and Coroners have in fact been elected there by the 'electors of the county,' and it probably does not make much difference that the word 'borough' is used in the charter instead of 'county,' since the result of the election in those counties would be the same whichever word was used. I do not know just what shape this controversy will take, but I hope it will result in a friendly suit which will be specially tried and determined. For my part, I shall do all in my power to contribute toward that result."

Drink is the cause of his downfall. He tells a curious story of the easy way he was converted from a commonplace citizen of convivial habits into an inmate of a criminal insane asylum.

Biggs said in court this morning that he was staggering through the streets of Islip, L. I., late one night, when he chanced to fall through a shop window. He was arrested for burglary and two doctors adjudged him insane. He is 53 years of age. Superintendent Allerton testified that he did not consider him a sane man and capable of caring for himself. He was willing to discharge him, however, if some responsible person would agree to take care of him. On the Court's order, Higgs was discharged in custody of his counsel.

$80 from one of Finna's pockets and distributed it among the Italians. They were not satisfied, however, and demanded more. To convince them that Finna had no money the officers searched him in front of the crowd, and then backed toward their carriage with drawn revolvers, the crowd following them up and threatening to kill them. The officers succeeded in getting away in safety with their prisoner, and orought him to the jail in this city.

Finna was seen at the jail by This Sun reporter, He said that Sullivan & Co. of 31 Broadway, New York, had agreed to float bonds of the Greenbush and Nassau Railroad to the amount of $375,000. They had an offer to sell them at 65 cents on the dollar, but held out for 80 cents. Finna says that the bonds could be sold at 50 cents and a good profit realized. He said he went to New York last Saturday to get an advance of some money, and was told at Sullivan & Co. s office that they expected to float the bonds in a day or so. Finna says he has received nothing from the contractors and has paid $3,000 of his own money to the laborers. He intends to secure a lien against the road.

HIS COUNSEL ADVISED HIM TO BRACE UP AND HE DID.

The Story of His Alleged Confession Expleded and His Bearing Adjourned Until After Christmas-Alleged Purchase of Poison.

mother on the plea that she wanted to buy a handkerchief.

The girl's father is a teacher in a Hebrew school in Newark and is in straitened circumstances. He left his wife and her four children in Cincinnati two months ago and came to Newark with Ida. His wife learned of his whoresbouts through the aid of a Hebrew society in Newark and the couple patched up a peace and tried housekeeping, with not very happy results.

Ida told the police on her release from jail that she did not care to live, as her home was unhappy. She said that she had tried togswallow carbolic acid just after her discharge, intonding to end her wees, but that it burned her throat so that she could not stand the pain and she spat the acid out. Police Captain Daly sought te dissuade her father to get the girl employment away from home. The father promised to do so, but in her despondency the girl sgain swallowed polson, and nearly succeeded in making away with her life. Had it not been that a passing peddler overheard her cries in the shed in which she had secreted herself, it is likely that she would not have been rescued in time to save her life. The police say that Ida is very despondent, and some of the neighbors think that the girl's mind is affected. She herself told the police that she, was afraid she was not strong enough to work for a living. Charles Zanoli, the suspected murderer of four wives and one of his workmen, was arraigned or the fourth time in Centre Street Court yes terday. Before he was arraigned his lawyer.

"Zanoli," said the lawyer, "you must stop this weeping and despondency. I know that it is hurting your case. .Do not show any emotion at all. Do not appear either elated or despondent, and I know that we can get you out of this trouble all right. As for your boy, be sure that he is being well taken care of." The advice of the lawyer had a bracing offect, as for the first time since Zanoli's arrest fect, as for the first time since Zanoli's arrest he did not burst into tears as soon as his name was mentioned. Assistant District Attorney Van Wyck told Magistrate Kudlich that he was not yet ready to proceed with the homicide case. Mr. O'Hare said that he was willing to promise to waive examination in the larceny charge provided that Joseph Moss, who appears for the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, the complainant in the case, would consent to have the papers marked that the case was adjourned until Dec. 28. Mr. Moss consented and the papers were so indorsed.

"As far as the affidavit charging a suspicion of larceny is concerned," said Lawyer O'Hare,

"As far as the affidavit charging a suspicion of larceny is concerned," said Lawyer O'Hare, "we believe that that is a purely formal matter. We are willing to waive all objections to adjournments, as we wish to give the people a chance to make the completest investigation." Magistrate Kudlich accordingly remanded Zanoli to the Tombs without bail until Dec. 28. Zanoli told his lawyers yesterday morning that the report that be had nade a confession to the Rev. G. C. Berkemeier of the Wartburg Orphans' Farm School of Pelhamville was untrue. He said he told the minister that he felt downbearted, and that, in view of the efforts that were being made on all sides to prove him a murderer, he would give up hope, were he not borne up by the confidence his own innocence inspired.

The Rev. Mr. Berkemeier said to a Sun re-

The Rev. Mr. Berkemeier said to a Sun re-"I wish to deny with as much emphasis as possible the stories printed in some papers to-day to the effect that Zanoli confessed to me. He did nothing of the kind. If he had, you may rest assured, since I called upon him in the capacity of a cleryman, that I would never have made the confession public. So far as the alleged confession goes, this is what passed be-tween use.

alleged confession goes, this is what passed between us:

"You are under a dark cloud of suspicion, Zanoii, I said. His reply was:

"I know it, and, since everybody has seemed to turn against me. I don't know how I am going to get out of it.

"I then told him that if he had a clear conscience he had nothing to fear. He answered that his conscience was clear and he feared nothing. When I went out of the prison proper. I stopped in at the Warden's office to thank him for his courtesy. Asked by the Warden how I found the prisoner, I told him what I have told you. A man was standing behind the Warden whom I took for a Tomba keeper. I found out afterward that he was a reporter. That probably accounts for the untruthful story printed this morning."

found out afterward that he was a reporter. That probably accounts for the untruthful story printed this morning."

It was learned yesterday that a man supposed to be Zanoli had bought cyanide of potassium at the drug store of Behn & Stechmann, 3 Second avenue. The drug was purchased four times, on Dec. 11, 14, 15, and 18, 1892. The quantity purchased was half a drachm. According to the poison book of the store, the man who got the poison signed himself first as "M. Crote, 222 Chrystie street." The second time the same man registered as "E. Pryor, I Second avenue." The third time he was "William Morello, 16 East Third street." The last time the man wrote a name in the book that looks like Zanoli, with a first name that may be only guessed at. This time the man lived at 18 St. Mark's place.

The first time the man told the druggist he wanted the drug to kill roaches. On two other occasions he said he wanted it for external use, and the fourth time he said he wanted it to clean jewelry.

J. D. ROCKEFELLER'S ASSESSMENT. His Right to Have It Reviewed to Be Decided by Judgo Barnard.

POUGHEREPSIE, Dec. 18 .- The certiorari pro ceedings instituted by John D. Rockefeller an William Rockefeller against the assessors of the town of Mount Pleasant, Westchester county, to review their assessments, came before Judge Barnard to-day. The counsel for the Rockefellers consented to the appointment of a referee to take testimony, which was agreeable to the assessors, but Frank V. Millard, counsel for the assessors, contended that John D. Rockefeller had lost all right to relief from his assessment by failing to appear, before the board when required to do so.

It was asserted that on Aug. 17 last, grievance day, Howard H. Morse of New York, Mr. Rockefeller's attorney, appeared before the assessors and made objection to the assessment. The board notified him that 'r. Rockefeller's appeared before the assessors ence was desired, but Mr. Hockefeller did not come. For Mr. Rockefeller, it was contended that he had never received notice to appear, and that on Nov. 20, before the assessment roll had been corrected and filed, Mr. Rockefeller offered to appear before the board, but they signed the roll and filed it without hearing him. Judge Barnard reserved his decision as to the right of John D. Rockefeller to have the assessment reviewed. to take testimony, which was agreeable mer, to whom he had gone with a rambling tale of domestic woe and a batch of tender letters from another man which he had found under the carpet where his wife had concealed thum. His wife was also in court. White wore on the lapel of his coat a button on which were the words:
"Don't you speak to me again. Please look the other way."
"That button," raid the Magistrate, "suggests the real solution of this problem. As I understand your story, you and your wife don't live together, but just nag at each other when you meet on the street. Now, you, Mr. White, must wear that button where your wife will see it, and you, madam, must get another button just like it and never go out without it."

She identified the clothing placed in evidence by Sheriff Brown as the same worn by Sachse on the day of the murder. She was sure of the trousers ause she had mended them. Her husban was home that day and Sachso had been at the se in the morning and twice in the afternoon. Mrs. Hotchkiss described the hole in the screen and the powder marks on the window sill and said that the casing on the washroom window and the cellar door were marked when examined the morning after the murder an that pieces of each had been taken by the detective.

The cross-examination brought out a general denial of anything said to the Coroner on the morning after the murder regarding the presence of two persons. She said she did not know what she did say. It was admitted by her that the Coroner did not put her under oath, and that her child Vera said, inst after the shot was fired and she came out of the bedroom:

"Has the noise hart papar!"

She did not know exactly the time the shot was fired, and she did not remember saying at the preliminary trial that the coat the man had on was a cutaway cont. She remembered saying it was a brown coat. The coat in court was shown to her, and she said it was Sachse's coat; that it was the one he wore the day of the mur-

She also said her husband had beaten her.
Another young winess was brought forward in Freda Hoffman, the 12-year-old daughter of Mrs. Annie Hoffman, a heighbor of the Hotch-kisses. She remembered the lay of the murder. Sachse was at work at her house that day and left about 5 o'clock, and as he left he called her to look at the clock to see what time it was. She did not see him after that until the next morning. She described the cartridges Sachse had about a week before the murder. There were 24 of them. This confirms the testimony of the Guilford merchant, who said he sold him 25 cartridges.
